drawn up on 10-12-2025

This document has been drawn up based on the information you have given us up to now and the current financial market conditions.

The following information remains valid until 24-12-2025. After that date, it may change depending on market conditions.

This document does not create any obligation on KBC Bank NV to grant you a loan.

The information in this ESIS concerns a subcredit of specific duration ('home loan') forming an integral part of loan application F00382207187 in a total of 345 000,00 EUR and incorporating the following home loans:

3. Main features of the loan

Amount and currency of the loan to be granted: 345 000,00 EUR

Term of the loan: 240 months.

Mortgage loan of immovable destination with equal monthly payments (each equal monthly payment comprises a variable portion that is a monthly repayment of the principal drawn down; the monthly debit interest charge is added to this portion and is calculated on the principal outstanding at the beginning of each month).

Variable debit interest rate: debit interest rate subject to change every three years and fluctuation margin: +2%/unlimited fall

When the debit interest rate is reviewed, the periodic debit interest rate will be changed as follows:
New periodic debit interest rate at the time of the interest-rate review =
Initial debit interest rate (expressed on a periodic basis)
+ value of new reference index (expressed on a periodic basis)
- value of initial debit interest rate (expressed on a periodic basis)

- Initial debit interest rate (expressed on a periodic basis) = $(1 + \text{real borrowing rate})^{1/12} - 1$
- Applicable reference index: reference index C
- Value of initial (periodic) reference index: 0,1805%

The new reference index in the above formula is the index published in the calendar month preceding the date set for changing the borrowing rate. This index can be viewed at https://economie.fgov.be/nl/themas/financiele-diensten/hypothecair-krediet/referte-indexen-voor-de.

Total amount to be repaid: 491 160,86 EUR

N.B.: this is a purely illustrative amount (calculated on the assumption that the borrowing rate remains unchanged during the full loan term) and can vary in line with changes in the borrowing rate.

This means that you repay 1,42 EUR per euro borrowed.

Securities:

- mortgage in the sum of 172 500,00 EUR in principal, plus interest and accessory expenses, over the real property situated at 6220 HEPPIGNIES, RUE JOSEPH DAYE 67, entered in the land register with the following details SECTION B 259MP0000
- power of attorney to create a mortgage in the sum of 172 500,00 EUR principal, plus interest and ancillary charges, over the real property situated at 6220 HEPPIGNIES, RUE JOSEPH DAYE 67, entered in the land register with the following details SECTION B 259MP0000
- set-off against assets, securities and other financial instruments
- pledge of credit balances or other assets on account

Assumed value of the real property for the purposes of compiling this information sheet: 357 894,00 EUR.

4. Interest rate and other charges

The annual percentage rate of charge represents the total charges relating to the loan expressed as an annual percentage. The annual percentage rate of charge better enables you to compare various offerings.

The annual percentage rate of charge for your loan is 3,90%.

This includes:

1. debit interest rate:

Debit interest rate: 0,2499% per month or in real terms 3,04% per year.

This includes a conditional interest rate rebate of 0,0291% per month, or 0,35% per year. For the detailed conditions for the interest rate rebate, see section 8 - additional obligations.

002497 / F00382207187/420-6890359-68 751210212603573857 / KC5154

- Maximum debit interest rate (annualised)
  After year 3 and subsequent years: 5,10%
- Minimum debit interest rate (annualised)
  After year 3 and subsequent years: 0,00%

2. Charges that must be paid once:

- Loan origination fee: 350,00 EUR payable to KBC Bank once you have accepted the offer.
- Estimated cost of the notarial deed of loan (other than fees for professional services): 5 809,64 EUR.
  You have to pay a fee for registering the mortgage/power of attorney to create a mortgage. This is included in the costs charged by the notary public.

3. Charges that must be paid at regular intervals:

- For Mrs. X X X ROWSHNI, born on 22-06-1993, non-smoker:
  loan balance insurance premiums monthly to be paid to KBC Insurance.
- For Mr. KILINGAR NANDA, born on 26-11-1991, non-smoker:
  loan balance insurance premiums monthly to be paid to KBC Insurance.

  No account of any supplementary premiums to be paid.

- Total amount in premiums for loan balance insurance: 9 967,00 EUR

- Total amount in premiums for home insurance to cover the building or contents: 15 397,62 EUR, with the 1st annual premium amounting to 761,35 EUR, subsequent annual premiums amounting to 770,33 EUR annual to be paid to KBC Insurances.

The estimates used by KBC Bank cannot be held liable for any erroneous or incomplete information you may have provided in connection with the insurance, or for any changes you make after the signing of the loan offer that could have an impact on the annual percentage rate of charge and the estimates used in that regard. The premiums are therefore non-binding for KBC Insurance.

Monthly amount in payment account charges: 2,00 EUR, payable to KBC, being a total amount of 480,00 EUR in payment account charges over the total duration of the credit.

This annual percentage rate of charge is calculated based on the debit interest rate hypotheses.

Please bear in mind that this annual percentage rate of charge is calculated based on the assumption that the debit interest rate for the full duration of the agreement will remain at the same level as was set for the first period.

Because your loan is subject to a changeable debit interest rate, the actual annual percentage rate of charge may differ from the annual percentage rate of charge stated here if the debit interest rate for your loan changes. Thus, if the debit interest rate increases to its maximum figures (see item 4 - 1 (interest rate)), the annual percentage rate of charge can increase to 5,28%.

In calculating this annual percentage rate of charge, we are assuming a full and immediately use of the loan whereby no commitment fee is charged. However, if you draw the loan down in tranches, you will owe KBC Bank a commitment fee of 0,1652% per month as of the sixth month following the commencement of the loan contract on the amount not drawn down.

Other charges, not included in the APR:

The following charges are unknown to the lender and therefore do not form part of the annual percentage rate of charge:

- Notary-public's fee for the deeds of loan and mortgage, notary-public's fee for a deed of power of attorney, payable to your notary-public upon signature of the deed of loan.

Make sure that you are aware of all the other taxes and charges in connection with your loan.

5. Frequency and number of payments

Repayment frequency: equal monthly payments
Number of payments: 240

6. Amount of each instalment

The amount payable each month as shown below assumes that the loan amount is fully drawn down on signature of the loan contract. If you draw the loan amount down in tranches (of a minimum of 2.500 EUR), the amount payable each month will depend on the loan amount actually drawn down.

Monthly instalment amount: 1 913,16 EUR
Last instalment amount: 1 911,36 EUR

Your income may change. Make sure that you are still able to afford your monthly instalments if your income decreases.

The borrowing rate for this loan can vary. That means that the level of your instalment payments can increase or decrease. For example, if the debit interest rate increases to 5,10%, your payments can go up to 2 222,70 EUR.

7. Illustrative repayment schedule

This table shows you what amount needs to be paid each month (column 4).

The amounts shown in italics as of year 4 may change in line with the variability of your debit interest rate.

Where a new debit interest rate becomes applicable at the time of a change of rate KBC Bank will provide you with a new repayment schedule at no charge.

8. Additional obligations

You must fulfill the following obligations to enjoy the credit terms described in this document.

To enjoy the conditional interest rate discount(s), you must fulfill the following obligations:

- You must take out credit-linked life insurance with KBC Insurance for the amount of the loan, entitling them to a conditional interest-rate discount of 0,0125% a month or 0,15% a year;
- You must take out insurance in their own name (home insurance) with KBC Insurance that covers the risk of damage (caused, for instance, by fire) to the building structure of the property/properties serving as real security or the property for which the loan is being taken out. If the insured property is an apartment where the risk of damage to the building is covered by a managing agent or other insurance not in their own name, the borrowers must take out KBC Home Insurance in their own name to cover the risk of damage to the contents of the property that has been provided by way of security or that was financed by the loan. This entitles them to a conditional interest-rate discount of 0,0125% a month or 0,15% a year;
- Your earnings (wages, income-substitution benefits, etc.) must be paid into a payment account held at KBC Bank, entitling you to a conditional interest-rate discount of 0,0041% a month 0,05% a year;

These conditions concerning the granting of the conditional interest-rate discounts must be met by the borrowers within one month of commencement of the home loan. The conditional interest-rate discount(s) mentioned above is/are permanently acquired on the expiry date of the first third of the duration of the loan contract.

The conditional interest-rate discounts linked to the credit-linked life insurance and/or the home insurance will in any case be deemed permanently acquired within the period corresponding to the first third of the duration of the loan contract in the event of:

- An increase in the rate of the insurance contract(s) specified, on the understanding that the application of the ABEX index to the insured value does not constitute a rate increase, which is not caused by an adjustment of the insured value of the property
- Cancellation of the insurance contract(s) specified following a claim event

In addition, the conditional interest-rate discount above linked to a payment account will be deemed permanently acquired within the period corresponding to the first third of the duration of the loan contract if the borrower terminates the framework agreement for their payment account that is part of the combined sale entitling them to the conditional interest-rate discount in connection with a payment account bank switching service (as stipulated in Chapter 9/1,Title 3 of Book VII of the Economic Law Code).

Should the lender be permitted to exercise its right to withdraw the interest-rate discount during the first third of the duration of the loan contract, the bank will provide the borrowers with a new repayment schedule free of charge. Furthermore, in the event of withdrawal of the interest-rate discount and for the purposes of the regulations governing adjustment of the debit interest rate, 'initial debit interest rate' means: the initial monthly debit interest rate plus the monthly interest-rate discount.

9. Early repayment

You may pay this loan off early in part or in full.

Conditions:
You must notify KBC Bank of this by registered post at least ten days before the repayment.

Full early repayment: the balance remaining outstanding can be repaid early in full at any time.

Partial early repayment: no more than one partial early repayment per calendar year is permitted if the amount of the early repayment is less than 10% of the amount of the home loan. If you repay part of the home loan early, you may choose between having the amount of the periodic payments changed (the term of the loan then remaining unchanged) and having the term of the home loan changed (home loan; the amounts to be paid periodically then remaining unchanged). This choice is available to you only if you are repaying the principal in instalments.

Reinvestment fee:
If early repayment is made in full or in part, you will have to pay a reinvestment fee equalling three months' debit interest calculated on the amount repaid early at the agreed rate of debit interest. You will have to pay a similar indemnification in the event of forced early repayment.

Calculation method:

In the case of full or partial early repayment: reinvestment fee = principal repaid early x monthly periodic debit interest rate (%) x 3

In the event of early repayment in full, however, you will not be liable to pay a reinvestment fee in the following cases:

- if the home loan was taken out from the bank to buy a building plot and is being repaid early and in full by means of a new home loan from the bank which is also intended for the construction of a dwelling on the same plot;
- if the home loan was granted in anticipation of the sale of real property and has a term of not more than 12 months and the principal is repayable in full at maturity out of the proceeds from the sale of the real property.

If you decide to pay this loan off early, please contact us to find out the reinvestment fee at that time.

10. Flexible features

With the express prior consent of KBC Bank, you can transfer this loan to another real property. For the specific terms and conditions that apply in that case, please contact your branch.

Additional features:

At the time the interest rate is being reviewed, you can, at no cost, make the following change to your variable-debit rate home loan during its term:

- shorten or lengthen the term (by up to 20% of the initial term)

002497 / F00382207187/420-6890359-68 751210212603573857 / KC5154

13. Failure to comply with the obligations linked to the loan: consequences for the borrower

Types of non-compliance and consequences

The home loan will be due and payable by operation of law and KBC Bank will be automatically empowered to demand immediate payment of the balance due where:

a. you fail to repay two or more instalments or a sum equal to 20% of the total amount repayable and you fail to heed your obligations within one month of being sent the notice of default;
b. by your own devices, you reduce the mortgage security constituted by you on signing the credit agreement in the following cases:
   - if the real estate forming the subject-matter of the mortgage security is wholly or partially alienated, sold, exchanged or gifted inter vivos;
   - if the real estate forming the subject-matter of a mortgage security or covenant to mortgage property is encumbered with a mortgage.
c. (one of) the borrowers or (one of) the parties providing security is/are declared bankrupt

Without prejudice to the penalties provided under the ordinary law, the court may order termination on grounds attributable to the consumer in the following cases:

a. if the real estate encumbered with a mortgage security forms the object of a seizure by another creditor;

002497 / F00382207187/420-6890359-68 751210212603573857 / KC5154

b. if the mortgage register entry does not rank as agreed with the consumer;
c. if the credit is taken out for a different purpose than the purpose specified by the consumer;
d. reduction of the mortgage security by a substantial write-down on the real estate for reasons attributable to the consumer: due to a change in its nature or designated use, by letting it at less than normal lease value or for more than nine years, unless KBC Bank has consented thereto;
e. in the event of joint ownership: a change to the base deed to which the consumer has consented, with a write-down in value as a consequence;
f. if the borrowers (or one of them) have (has) deliberately withheld information or displayed inaccurate information therefore their creditworthiness was not properly assessed;
g. if a contractor, architect, surveyor or other tradesman procures the minute referred to in Article 27(5°) of the Mortgages Act of 16 December 1851;
h. if the real estate financed by the loan is not completely finished and suitable for letting within 24 months of signature of the notarial deed of credit or the works are not executed in accordance with the plans and bills of conditions or the permits as issued.

If the grounds for the loan being called in relate to failure to pay an amount due, KBC Bank may only call in the loan if you have failed to comply in full or in part with the KBC Bank's notice of default sent by registered letter. The notice of default refers to the consequences of failing to rectify the breach and allows you to fully settle the arrears within one month of being sent the registered post.

The bank may suspend one or more home loans for objectively justified reasons. This pertains to situations where the bank has information from which it can be deduced that the consumer will no longer be able to fulfil their obligations.

The bank also reserves the right to suspend a new home loan by operation of law and without notice of default as long as you fail or refuse to repay an existing loan early and in full using some of your own funds, given that the new home loan was intended - together with your own funds - precisely for the purpose of repaying the existing loan early and in full.

If any of the borrowers dies, their heirs and/or the surviving borrowers, if they have sufficient creditworthiness, may request the bank to allow further drawdowns on the credit amount under the conditions and described purpose of the home loan or, if drawdowns have already been made, to continue the execution of the home loan in accordance with the repayment schedule. In order to request any drawdown or further drawdowns on the credit amount, or further execution of the home loan, the heirs and/or surviving borrowers must first provide the bank with proof of their creditworthiness.

Termination of the home loan means that the home loan can no longer be drawn down. If the home loan has already previously been partly drawn down, the sum of the home loan is reduced to the amount drawn down and your payment obligations are recalculated, though no change is made to the term of the home loan. Suspension of the home loan means that the home loan cannot temporarily be further drawn down. However, your obligations must still be performed notwithstanding suspension of the home loan. Suspension of the home loan does not suspend the agreed period for drawing down the credit amount.

If you have difficulty in carrying out your payments, please contact us immediately in order to find possible solutions.

As an ultimate measure, your home may be seized if you do not make your payments in time.

Part II: Specific conditions governing the individual home loans

Article II.1: Home loan 420-6890359-68

Mortgage loan for immovable property with Equal monthly repayments.

II.1.1 Amount

345 000,00 EUR

II.1.2 Purpose

The purpose of the home loan is to finance:

- build residential property 270 000,00 EUR
- purchase of land 75 000,00 EUR

The borrowers confirm the requirement for the purposes of execution of the works of planning permission (in the Flemish Region) or a building permit (in the Brussels-Capital and Walloon Regions). They will forward their authorisation to the bank prior to any draw-down of capital under the loan.

II.1.3 Duration

240 months

II.1.4 Debit interest rate

The periodic debit interest rate on the home loan comes to 0,2499% per month or, in real terms, to 3,04% actual debit interest rate per year.

This includes a conditional interest-rate discount in accordance with the provisions of Article II.1.9 set out below.

Type of debit interest rate: variable

Interest rate review formula selected: debit interest rate subject to change every three years (3/3/3)

- Type of reference index: C
  - Initial reference index (on a monthly basis): 0,1805

Maximum movement in periodic debit interest rate on date of review compared to the above rate:

per month:

+ 0,1652%	limited to a maximum of double the original debit interest rate and
- unlimited	decline but never negative for the remainder of the contract

II.1.5 Annual percentage rate of charge

The annual percentage rate of charge for your loan is: 3,90%

This includes:

Debit interest rate: cfr. II.1.4

Charges that must be paid once:

- Loan origination fee: 350,00 euros, payable to KBC Bank once you have accepted the offer.
- Estimated cost of the notarial deed of loan (other than fees for professional services): 5 809,64 euros. You have to pay a fee for registering the mortgage/power of attorney to create a mortgage. This is included in the costs charged by the notary public.

Charges that must be paid at regular intervals:

- for Mrs X X X ROWSHNI, born on 22-06-1993, non-smoker:
  monthly loan balance insurance premium to be paid to KBC Insurance.
- for Mr KILINGAR NANDA, born on 26-11-1991, non-smoker:
  monthly loan balance insurance premium to be paid to KBC Insurance.

No account of any supplementary premiums to be paid.

Total amount in premiums for loan balance insurance: 9 967,00 EUR

For the loan balance insurance, the borrower(s) can choose between the various loan balance insurance product types. The above-mentioned amounts are estimates of premiums used for the calculation of the annual percentage rate of charge on the provisional choice of loan balance insurance product made by the borrower(s).

The borrower(s) is (are) aware of the amount of the simulated periodic premium amounts, based on the preliminary choices of the borrower(s).

The frequency of the premium payments is determined in accordance with the provisional choice of the borrower(s). The annual percentage rate of charge is calculated based on the assumption that these premiums will be paid in conjunction with the monthly home loan instalments according to the chosen frequency of premium payments for the loan balance insurance.

Total amount in premiums for home insurance to cover the building or contents: 15 397,62 EUR, with the 1st annual premium amounting to 761,35 EUR, , subsequent annual premiums amounting to 770,33 EUR, annual to be paid to KBC Insurance.

The single premium payment is determined in accordance with the provisional choice of the borrower(s). The annual percentage rate of charge is calculated based on the assumption that the initial premium will be paid immediately upon full and immediate drawdown of the home loan.

The estimates used by KBC Bank are based on the information provided by you. KBC Bank cannot be held liable for any erroneous or incomplete information you may have provided in connection with the insurance, or for any changes you make after the signing of the loan offer that could have an impact on the annual percentage rate of charge and the estimates used in that regard. The premiums are therefore non-binding for KBC Insurance.

Charges that must be paid at regular intervals:
- Monthly amount in payment account charges: 2,00 EUR payable to KBC Bank, being a total amount of 480,00 EUR in payment account charges over the total duration of the credit.

The annual percentage rate of charge is calculated based on the following assumptions:
- The credit contract applies for the agreed term and the bank and the borrowers must fulfil their obligations in accordance with the terms and conditions on the dates stipulated in the credit contract;
- A month is made up of 30.4167 days;
- The debit interest rate is invariable (despite the fact that it may have a variable nature);
- The credit amount will be drawn down immediately and in full, insofar as this not already a given;
- The one-off charges (origination fee, fees for pledging of the security, appraisal charges) will be paid upon conclusion of the contract.

Total amount to be paid according to these assumptions: 491 160,86 EUR

II.1.6 Commitment fee

0,1652% a month

II.1.7 Type of repayment schedule

Equal monthly repayments

II.1.8 Payments

The enclosed repayment schedule shows the composition of each payment amount together with the balance still due after each payment.

240 equal monthly payments, consisting of principal and debit interest, of 1 913,16 EUR each, initially to be paid 1 month after commencement of the home loan, and subsequently on the same date of every month. The final payment comprising both principal and debit interest, amounts to 1 911,36 EUR.

II.1.9 Consumers are free to avail themselves of services related to this home loan. Consumers who choose to do so will be granted the conditional interest-rate discount by the bank subject to the conditions set out in this Article.

- The borrowers must take out credit-linked life insurance with KBC Insurance for the amount of the loan, entitling them to a conditional interest-rate discount 0,0125% a month or 0,15% a year;
- The borrowers must take out insurance in their own name (home insurance) with KBC Insurance that covers the risk of damage (caused, for instance, by fire) to the building structure of the property/properties serving as real security or the property for which the loan is being taken out. If the insured property is an apartment where the risk of damage to the building is covered by a managing agent or other insurance not in their own name, the borrowers must take out KBC Home Insurance in their own name to cover the risk of damage to the contents of the property that has been provided by way of security or that was financed by the loan. This entitles them to a conditional interest-rate discount of 0,0125% a month or 0,15% a year;
- The borrowers must have their earnings (wages, income-substitution benefits, etc.) paid into a payment account held at KBC , entitling them to a conditional interest-rate discount of 0,0041% a month or 0,05% a year;

These conditions concerning the granting of the conditional interest-rate discounts must be met by the borrowers within one month of commencement of the home loan (see Article III.5.1). Should the lender be permitted to exercise its right to withdraw the interest-rate discount during the first third of the full duration of the loan contract, the bank will provide the borrowers with a new repayment schedule free of charge.

The conditional interest-rate discount(s) mentioned above is/are permanently acquired after the first third of the originally agreed duration - counting from the time the loan contract was signed - has expired. When requested by the borrower(s), the bank must inform them during the duration of the loan contract of the exact date on which the first third of the term of the contract expires.

The conditional interest-rate discounts linked to the credit-linked life insurance and/or the home insurance will in any case be deemed permanently acquired within the period corresponding to the first third of the full duration of the loan contract in the event of:

- An increase in the rate of the insurance contract(s) specified, on the understanding that the application of the ABEX index to the insured value does not constitute a rate increase, which is not caused by an adjustment of the insured value of the property
- Cancellation of the insurance contract(s) specified following a claim event

In addition, the conditional interest-rate discount above linked to a payment account will be deemed permanently acquired within the period corresponding to the first third of the full duration of the loan contract if the borrower terminates the framework agreement for their payment account that is part of the combined sale entitling them to the conditional interest-rate discount in connection with a payment account bank switching service (as stipulated in Chapter 9/1,Title 3 of Book VII of the Economic Law Code).

Credit-linked insurance is not eligible for a conditional interest-rate discount if the home loan is taken out to cover the full early repayment of an existing loan with the bank.

In the case of a variable debit interest rate, it also applies that at the time of withdrawal of the interest-rate discount and for the purposes of the regulations governing adjustment of the debit interest rate (Article III.5.2.2), 'initial debit interest rate' means: the initial monthly debit interest rate plus the monthly interest-rate discount.

Part III: General credit terms and conditions

Article III.1 Formation of the contract

This offer is binding on the lender for 14 days and may be accepted by the borrowers at any time within that period.
The contract will enter into effect on the timely acceptance of the offer by all the borrowers. The contract cannot be revoked. Should the borrowers, or one of them, be minors or not have the capacity to act for another reason, the present offer will be made on the condition that all required consent and/or authorization is obtained with a view to the valid conclusion of the contract and the valid establishment of security.

Article III.2 Rights and obligations of the borrowers - general

III.2.1 The borrowers bind themselves jointly and severally in respect of all rights and obligations arising out of the contract. Several liability means that each borrower can be held liable individually by the bank for any amounts owed in accordance with this contract. Jointly liability means that, in the event of legal succession, the debt may be recovered in full from any of the legal successors of one or all of the borrowers.

III.2.2 The borrowers grant each other irrevocable power of attorney to act alone in the name of all the borrowers to make or receive any notice regarding the present contract, and also to agree upon any amendment or addition, or to perform any legal act. They will inform the bank without delay of all changes to the information supplied to the bank.

Article III.3 Use of the credit

The contract is non-renewable.

Article III.4 Purpose of the home loan

At the bank's first request, the borrowers will allow the bank to inspect the requisite administrative permits and permissions for urban planning actions (Flemish Region) or planning permits (Walloon Region and the Brussels-Capital Region) and/or the private contract of sale.

Where the home loan is intended to finance construction (renovation) work, it may be drawn down only according as the work progresses. The progress of the work will be evidenced by the borrowers by means of invoices. The bank may refuse to accept invoices which are not in the name of at least one of the borrowers, invoices already paid with the borrowers' own funds before the home loan commences, or invoices already paid with the borrowers' own funds after the home loan commences and which are more than one month old. If a permission for urban planning actions (Flemish Region) or planning permit (Walloon Region and the Brussels-Capital Region) is required for the work in question, the (corresponding part of the) amount of the credit may not be drawn down until the permission is remitted to the bank.

Article III.5 Clauses relating to the specific conditions governing the individual home loans (Part II)

III.5.1 Commencement of the home loans

The home loans will begin to run as soon as the borrowers' payment obligations commence. The borrowers' payment obligations will begin:

- if the bank requires real security: on the date the real security is established, or on the date the last real security was established if the bank requires additional real security;
- if the bank does not require any additional real security: the date the offer of credit was accepted;

- if the home loan is going to be used to refinance in full an existing loan at the bank: on the date set for early repayment in full of the loan as specified in the specific conditions (part II). If, however, the contract and any new real security are not established before the settlement date in question, then the payment obligations of the borrowers will begin on the first due date for the existing loan that follows the establishment of the home loan and, where applicable, the new real security. In the absence of such a due date or if the loan is a bridging loan, the borrowers' payment obligations will begin on the date stipulated in the preceding point.

The payment obligations as laid down in the repayment schedule can only commence when the borrowers have, at a minimum, drawn down the amount of the principal for the next instalment in full as set out in this contract and specified in the repayment schedule. If the borrowers have drawn down an insufficient amount in principal, the payment obligation will be suspended and the term agreed for the home loan will remain unchanged and be pushed back. The payment obligation will therefore enter into effect when the borrowers have, at a minimum, drawn down the amount of the principal for the next instalment in accordance with the repayment schedule as set out in this contract. Consequently, the number of instalments and their composition as laid down in the repayment schedule will remain unchanged.

III.5.2 Debit interest rate on the home loans

III.5.2.1 In Part II, it is stipulated for each home loan whether the debit interest rate is fix or variable. If the debit interest rate is fix, then it will remain in effect for the duration of the home loan.

III.5.2.2 If the debit interest rate is variable, then the following rules apply:

III.5.2.2.1 The debit interest rate will change when the periods specified in Part II of the Specific Conditions come to an end. These periods begin to run from the commencement of the home loan.

III.5.2.2.2 The debit interest rate will be changed according to the following formula:

New debit interest rate = initial debit interest rate + (new reference index - initial reference index).

The reference indices referred to are published each month in the Belgian Official Gazette. In Part II of the Specific Conditions, the type of index applicable for each home loan is specified.

Specifically, in the foregoing formula:
- the initial debit interest rate: the monthly debit interest rate specified in Part II of the Specific Conditions;
- the new reference index: the index figure expressed on a monthly basis and published during the calendar month preceding the date scheduled for the change in the debit interest rate;
- the initial reference index: the interest figure expressed on a monthly basis specified in Part II of the Specific Conditions, i.e. the index figure published in the calendar month preceding the date of the bank's schedule of rates and charges.

III.5.2.2.3 For each home loan, the margin within which the debit interest rate may change relative to the initial debit interest rate is specified in Part II of the Specific Conditions. However, the periodic debit interest rate can never be more than double the original periodic debit interest rate (if it goes up) and never be negative (if it goes down).

III.5.2.2.4 The bank will notify the borrowers of the new debit interest rate not later than the date on which the new debit interest rate enters into force.
At the same time, it will make a new repayment schedule available to them, free of charge.

III.5.2.2.5 In accordance with Article VII.143 of the Economic Law Code, one of the following reference indices calculated on a monthly basis by the Securities Regulation Fund is used for the variability of the debit interest rate. The A reference index is based on the reference interest rates of treasury certificates whose residual maturity is closest to one year. Indices C and E are based on the theoretical rates of return on government debt securities over three and five years, respectively.

The said reference indices for the variable periodic interest rates on mortgage loans are published monthly in the Belgian Official Gazette after calculation by the Belgian Debt Agency that is the manager. This legal reference index is based on a Benchmark within the meaning of the Benchmark Regulation (EU) 2016/1011 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 8 June 2016 on indices used as benchmarks in financial instruments and financial contracts, or to measure the performance of investment funds and amending Directives 2008/48/EC and 2014/17/EU and Regulation (EU) No. 596/2014 ('the Benchmark Regulation'). This reference index may be changed. In this case, and in order to comply with the provisions of the Benchmark Regulation, the bank undertakes to contact the borrowers in order to inform them about alternative benchmark indices and about the impact of such a change on their credit contract.

III.5.2.3 If the debit interest rate is variable, then the borrowers have the following options:

On expiry of an interest rate review period, the borrowers may extend or shorten the term, on the understanding that:
- the original term of the home loan may never be extended or shortened by more than one-fifth;
- the term of the home loan may never be extended to more than 30 years or shortened to less than 10 years;
- the remaining term to maturity of the home loan may never be longer or shorter than the terms that the bank is then offering on the market for similar loans;
- the change in the term of the home loan is requested from the bank in writing prior to the date set for the interest rate review.

All of these conditions apply simultaneously.

These options will not be available if the principal is repayable in a lump sum on the final due date of the credit.

The bank may refuse the exercising of the aforementioned right of extension or shortening of the term of the home loan if, when such an adjustment is made, the borrowers are or have been in arrears and/or have a negative registration the Central Individual Credit Register.

III.5.3 Utilization of the home loans

The amount of credit may be drawn down all at once or in tranches of minimum 2 500 EUR. If the purpose of the home loan is to finance construction or renovation works, the additional conditions in Article III.4 of this contract will apply.

If a valuation is required by the bank, it has the right but not the obligation to suspend the drawdown of the loan amount until it receives the valuation report drawn up by the external valuer appointed by the consumer. That external valuer must be either on a list of accredited valuers provided by the bank or be explicitly approved by the bank prior to the valuation.

If the amount of credit is not drawn down in full within a period of five months from the commencement of the home loan, the borrowers will owe a commitment fee upon expiry of that period, as set out in Part II of the Specific Conditions. This fee is calculated on the portion of the amount of credit not drawn down and is payable at the end of each calendar month. The commitment fee is owed only for the duration of the specified term of 24 months.

The amount of credit must be drawn down in full within twenty-four months from the commencement of the home loan. If the borrowers have not drawn down the home loan in full within the twenty-four-month period, the amount of the home loan will be reduced to the amount drawn down and the payment obligations of the borrowers will be recalculated, the term of the loan remaining unchanged.

In the event the drawdowns are intended to pay for the notary-public (including purchase price of the property, registration duties, inheritance tax, etc.) the borrowers, by concluding this contract, give their explicit agreement that these funds will be transferred to the notary-public or paid to the notary-public via a bank cheque.

If the home loan is intended to refinance in full an existing loan and the new home loan is not sufficient to repay the full amount of the existing loan early, the borrowers undertake to pay the difference using their own funds. By concluding this contract, the borrowers instruct the bank to use the full amount of the loan to repay the existing loan early and in full (see Part II Specific conditions). However, the bank is not obliged to carry out this instruction if the borrowers are also required - but fail - to contribute funds of their own for this purpose.

If the home loan is to be used to refinance an existing loan in full and if, by the proposed settlement date (see Part II Specific conditions), the home loan has not entered into effect and, where applicable, the new real security has not been established, then the amount of the home loan will be reduced to the amount needed to repay the existing loan early and in full and, in the event, the term of the home loan will be shortened while the existing monthly payments will remain intact.

The bank and the borrowers agree that the borrowers may validly instruct the bank by fax, online message, e-mail or other digital channels to pay out the credit amount (in full or in part). The borrowers acknowledge that such a fax, online message, e-mail or message delivered via any other digital channel of the bank will have the same evidential value as any instructions written and signed by them. The borrowers accept that they themselves will bear any and all prejudicial consequences arising from fraud, mistakes, lack of authorisation or delays, unless they can provide proof of serious error, intent or fraud on the part of the bank or its employees.

III.5.4 Payment obligations of borrowers

The borrowers are required to pay debit interest due, calculated pro rata temporis on the outstanding balance of the credit drawn down and at the debit rate specified for each home loan in Part II of the Specific Conditions. For a home loan with equal monthly repayments, these repayments will always be rounded up after applying the debit interest rate specified in the contract. As a result, the final payment may be lower than the other monthly repayments in order to bring the balance due to zero at the end of the home loan.
The borrowers are also obliged to pay back the amount of credit drawn down. In Part II of the Specific Conditions and the enclosed repayment schedule, it is specified for each home loan how much the borrowers owe the bank in order to repay the credit amount and pay the debit interest.

Article III.6 Security

III.6.1 General

If security is required by the bank, the home loans may not be used until all security has effectively (i.e. fully and indisputably) been established and is maintained. Any derogation from this rule permitted by the bank may not be construed to the bank's disadvantage and will in no way affect the borrowers' obligation forthwith to provide/restore (have) the required security (provided/restored). The bank is entitled, though not obliged, to determine if the value of the real property serving as real security is adequate.

Save as otherwise stipulated in a security agreement, security required by the bank serves as security for all amounts owed to the bank and/or its legal successors under any title whatsoever, in accordance with:

- all credits, in whatever form, which the borrowers, severally or jointly, whether in conjunction with others or not, at this time already have disposal of or which they may now or in future obtain or continue through legal succession under any title whatsoever, irrespective of whether they or their legal predecessors have acted or will act in a professional or private capacity; furthermore, all credits referred to above which, through legal succession under any title whatsoever, are, in whole or in part, continued or taken over by the borrowers consecutive successors in title;
- all debts of the borrowers, or of one of them, on account of banking services that have already been or will be rendered, bank transactions or liabilities of any kind, or on account of any personal security whatsoever that has already been or will be provided; all claims which the bank may acquire as a result of assignment or subrogation;
- all credits and debts of third parties for which the borrowers, jointly or severally, are or may become liable, including as co-borrowers or guarantors.

If a credit is transferred or if others become party to the credit, or if a credit is continued with the heirs or successors in title of the borrowers, the instruments of security provided will continue with full force and effect to secure the credit contract.

The bank will notify the third-party security provider in advance of every new loan offer it will issue to the borrowers. At that stage, they will ask the third-party security provider to co-sign this loan offer by way of explicit reconfirmation that all of the security sums they have granted also serve as security for this loan offer. This clause also applies if one of the borrowers must individually be regarded as a third-party security provider when credits are granted to one of the initial borrowers.

If the credit contract is secured by several instruments of security personal and/or collateral these will supplement each other, if possible until settlement in full of the bank's claim.

III.6.2 Scope

The bank is granting the contract, taking into account all credit balances and securities or other financial instruments which some or all of the borrowers (whether in conjunction with third parties or otherwise) hold with it.

III.6.3 Pledging of credit balances

As security for their commitments, the borrowers also pledge to the bank all credit balances that they currently hold or in the future will hold on an account with a financial institution.

III.6.4 Real security

In the present contract, by 'real security' is meant: all security referred to in Article 9,53° Economic Law Code. All security required must be established no later than 106 days after the offer of credit expires.

Unless otherwise stipulated, real security that is required will always involve full title to the real property. The borrowers (and/or third parties providing real security) must ensure that title to the real property is free from all liens, charges and encumbrances.

The borrowers (and/or third parties providing security) will maintain intact all their rights to the real property serving as real security. This means that, among other things, they may not, without the bank's consent, alienate or mortgage the said property or encumber it with a power of attorney to create a mortgage or a covenant to mortgage property.

The borrowers authorize the bank to seek execution of any of the borrowers' other real property prior to or concurrently with the sale of the property mortgaged in its favour, without the bank having to prove that the value of the mortgaged property is inadequate. If the bank has required a mortgage as security, the borrowers undertake to have the home loans laid down in a notarial and enforceable deed.

Article III.7 Proof - Payments - Charges - Limitation Period

III.7.1 Legal proof of the amount of the bank's claim will be given vis-à-vis the borrowers, any providers of security and all other third parties by a statement certified as true and genuine by the bank.

The bank reserves the right, but is under no obligation, to refuse partial payments. This does not affect the right of the borrowers to early repayment as set out in Article III.9. The bank will receive the payments from the borrowers or from third parties offset them against any amounts owed by the borrowers or their legal successors under any title whatsoever, or one of them, both in accordance with this contract and in accordance with any other contracts with the bank. The set-off will be performed based on the date of the outstanding debt, starting with the oldest outstanding debt. Any set-off against the principal will not imply release in respect of the debit interest and/or other amounts owed by the borrowers.

III.7.2 All charges - as referred to in Article VII.141 of the Economic Law Code to which this contract or the security for it gives or will give rise f.ex.notary fee will be borne by the borrowers. Any costs borne by the bank will be reimbursed forthwith by the borrowers.

III.7.3 Without prejudice to the grounds for interruption under the general principles of law, notice given by letter (whether registered or otherwise) will interrupt the limitation period.

III.7.4 The borrowers irrevocably appoint the Bank as their special agent to obtain information relating to them from the register of births, deaths and marriages and the register of aliens.

Article III.8 Transfer of the (rights arising from) the contract

The bank is entitled to transfer the contract (or its rights arising out of it) in full or in part, or to subrogate a third party in full or in part to its rights. In the event that the contract is transferred, the borrowers undertake to accept the transferee as the new lender.

The borrowers consent, insofar as is legally required, to the transfer to the third party of their personal details and other details pertaining to the contract.

Article III.9 Early repayment and reinvestment fee

The borrowers can repay the outstanding balance of a home loan early in full or in part at any time. However, no more than one partial early repayment per calendar year is permitted if the amount of the early repayment is less than 10% of the amount of the home loan.
If the borrowers wish to make early repayment of all or part of a home loan, they are required to inform the bank of their intention by registered post at least ten days before the repayment.
If the borrowers repay part of the home loan early, they may choose between having the amount of the periodic payments changed (the term of the loan then remaining unchanged) and having the term of the home loan changed (the amounts to be paid periodically then remaining unchanged). This choice is available to them only if they are repaying the principal in instalments.
If, before expiry of the home loan, the borrowers wish to fulfil the obligations resulting from it, the bank will immediately after receipt of their request send them, on a permanent data carrier, the information that they need in order to consider that possibility. That information comprises at least a calculation of the consequences for the borrowers that fulfil their obligations before expiry of the credit contract and a clear statement of the hypotheses applied in that regard.

If early repayment is made in full or in part, the borrowers will have to pay a reinvestment fee equalling three months' debit interest calculated on the amount repaid early at the agreed debit interest rate. The borrowers will have to pay a like indemnification in the event of forced early repayment (see Article III.11.1).III.11.1

The borrowers will not, however, have to pay a reinvestment fee on making early repayment in full if:
- the home loan was taken out at the bank to buy a building plot and is being repaid early and in full by means of a new home loan at the bank which is also intended for the construction of a dwelling on the same plot;
- the home loan was granted in anticipation of the sale of real property and has a term of not more than 12 months and the principal is repaid in full out of the proceeds from the sale of the real property.

Articlel III.10 Interest and charges owed in the event of simple payment arrears and termination

III.10.1 On non-payment of debit interest on the due date (or on the due date of the periodic charge that includes the interest), the debit interest rate for that due date will be increased by one half per cent per year. If a principal instalment is not paid on the due date (or on the due date for the periodic charge that includes the principal), this instalment will yield interest in favour of the bank calculated at the same, higher rate of debit interest and from the due date until the date of payment.

Furthermore, default interest and/or compensatory interest, calculated at the debit interest rate applying to the home loan and increased by one half per cent per year, will be due without delay in all other cases of failure to pay, such as on termination of the home loan.

The borrowers will be liable for the interest stipulated in the foregoing paragraphs by operation of law and without formal notice being required. In the case of late payment, the bank is required to send the borrowers a registered post within three months advising them of the consequences of default of payment.

The bank is also required to pay the borrowers default interest should it fail to make the amount of credit available to them. This interest will be calculated at the same debit interest rate as that stipulated for the borrowers.

The borrowers undertake, in the event of default, to pay the bank compensation which, on simple arrears of payment is fixed as a lump sum of 7,50 euros (+ postage) per notice of default at a frequency of one dispatch per month. If a home loan is terminated, the borrowers will, in addition to these notices of default, pay the bank compensation equal to the reinvestment fee according to the calculation specified in Article III.9 of this contract.

III.10.2 If the borrowers fail to pay an amount due within three months of the due date or within one month of the registered post referred to in Article III.10.1, the bank is required by law to report the default to the National Bank of Belgium for registration in the database kept by the Central Office for Credit to Private Individuals (Centrale voor kredieten aan Particulieren - CKP).

Artikel III.11 Calling in, suspension and breach of the home loans

III.11.1

The home loan will be due and payable by operation of law and KBC Bank will be automatically empowered to demand immediate payment of the balance due where:

a. the borrowers fail to repay two or more instalments or a sum equal to 20% of the total amount repayable and you fail to heed your obligations referred to in article III.10.1. within one month of being sent the notice of default;
b. the consumer's actions have served to reduce the collateral, which he/she had established under the credit contract, in the following cases:
   1° if the real estate forming the subject-matter of the mortgage security is wholly or partially alienated, sold, exchanged or gifted inter vivos;
   2° if the real estate forming the subject-matter of a mortgage security or covenant to mortgage property is encumbered with a mortgage;
c. (one of) the borrowers or (one of) the parties providing security (is) are declared bankrupt

III.11.1.bis

Without prejudice to the penalties provided under the ordinary law, the court may order termination on grounds attributable to the consumer in the following cases:

1. if the real estate encumbered with a mortgage security forms the object of a seizure by another creditor;
2. if the mortgage register entry does not rank as agreed with the consumer;
3. if the credit is taken out for a different purpose than the purpose specified by the consumer;
4. reduction of the mortgage security by a substantial write-down on the real estate for reasons attributable to the consumer: due to a change in its nature or designated use, by letting it at less than normal lease value or for more than nine years, unless KBC Bank has consented thereto;
5. in the event of joint ownership: a change to the base deed to which the consumer has consented, with a write-down in value as a consequence;
6. if the borrowers (or one of them) have (has) deliberately withheld information or displayed inaccurate information therefore their creditworthiness was not properly assessed;
7. if a contractor, architect, surveyor or other tradesman procures the minute referred to in Article 27,5° of the Mortgages Act of 16 December 1851;
8. if the real estate financed by the loan is not completely finished and suitable for letting within 24 months of signature of the notarial deed of credit or the works are not executed in accordance with the plans and bills of conditions or the permits as issued.

If the grounds for the loan being called in relate to failure to pay an amount due, the bank may only call in the loan if the borrowers have failed to comply in full or in part with the bank's notice of default for payment sent by registered post. In this notice of default, the bank will point out the consequences of default by the borrowers and offer them the possibility of paying off the arrears in full within one month of the date of dispatch of its registered post.

III.11.2 The bank may suspend one or more home loans for objectively justified reasons. This pertains to situations where the bank has information from which it can be deduced that the consumer will no longer be able to fulfil their obligations.

The bank also reserves the right to suspend a new home loan by operation of law and without notice as long as the borrowers fail or refuse to repay an existing loan early and in full using some of their own funds, given that the new home loan was intended - together with the own funds contributed by the borrowers - precisely for the purpose of repaying the existing loan early and in full.

If any of the borrowers dies, their heirs and/or the surviving borrowers, if they have sufficient creditworthiness, may request the bank to allow further drawdowns on the credit amount under the conditions and described purpose of the home loan or, if drawdowns have already been made, to continue the execution of the home loan in accordance with the repayment schedule. In order to request any drawdown or further drawdowns on the credit amount, or further execution of the home loan, the heirs and/or surviving borrowers must first provide the bank with proof of their creditworthiness.

In the event of a breach in respect of the home loan, it will become unavailable to the borrowers. If the home loan has already been drawn down in part, the amount of the home loan will be reduced to the amount drawn down and the payment obligations of the borrowers will be recalculated, the term of the loan remaining unchanged. The suspension of the home loan will result in the home loan becoming temporarily unavailable to the borrowers. The borrowers' obligations will still have to be met, however, regardless of the suspension of the home loan. A suspension of the home loan will not result in a suspension of the agreed time limit for drawing down the credit amount.

If the bank fails to meet its obligations, the borrowers are only entitled to cancel the contract and to compensation equivalent to that which is estimated in favour of the bank in Article III.9.

Article III.12 Privacy

III.12.1 The bank endeavours to process the borrowers' personal data (and/or that of third-party mortgage lenders) in a manner that is lawful, appropriate and transparent. The borrowers (and/or third-party mortgage lenders) can find more information on the processing and exchange of their personal data in the Bank's privacy statement. The privacy statement also sets out the rights of the borrowers (and/or third-party mortgage lenders) and explains how they can exercise them. The privacy statement is available at www.kbc.be/privacy, the bank branches of the borrowers (and/or third-party mortgage lenders) or from the intermediary of the borrowers (and/or third-party mortgage lenders) and is updated on a regular basis.

This contract has been registered with the Central Office for Credit to Private Individuals in accordance with Article VII.148, §1, first paragraph of the Economic Law Code). The purpose of registering with the Central Office for Credit to Private Individuals is to provide information to lenders in respect of existing credits and any arrears of payments of the borrowers. The borrowers are entitled to access, correct and delete information recorded free of charge. They may exercise this right in the manner described in Article VII.152 of the Economic Law Code and in Article 13 of the Royal Decree of 23 March 2017.

Unless deleted early for the above reason(s), information will be kept on record for the following periods:
- three months and eight business days following the date the credit contract ends;

If the credit is defaulted on within the meaning of Section 3 regarding the Central Individual Credit Register (see Title 4 'Credit agreements' in book VII of the Economic Law Code) and the Royal Decree of 23 March 2017, the information will be kept on record for a longer period of time. In this case, the following periods will apply:
- twelve months starting from the date the credit contract is regularized;
- maximum ten years starting from the first time a default of payment is registered, regardless of whether the credit contract has been regularized or not.

Article III.13 Election of domicile

For the performance of this contract and the security agreements concluded with the bank, though solely with regard to any legal notices, actions at law or prosecution, the borrowers elect domicile both at the address specified above and at the real property given as security, without prejudice to the right of the bank to have legal notices served to or actions at law and prosecution undertaken in respect of the last address notified to it.
